Siderophore-mediated interactions among Pseudomonas aeruginosa isolated from CF patients. The siderophore-mediated iron-acquisition capabilities of a collection of clinical isolates of Pseudomonas aeruginosa were evaluated. Twenty-nine isolates were examined for their ability to produce and secrete siderophores and their ability to utilize the siderophore of the other isolates in vitro. Additionally, indirect cell interactions were studied by mixing cultures of two isolates and evaluating growth characteristics of the mixed cultures in nutrient broth. Seven isolates were unable to produce a siderophore and the remaining 22 strains produced desferrioxamine-type, pyoverdine-type, or pyochelin-type siderophores. Five of the pyoverdine-producing strains could utilize both pyoverdine and pyochelin siderophores as demonstrated by the competitive assay, but all of the other isolates only utilized pyoverdine. Isolates that produce only pyoverdine do not use the exogenously added pyoverdine as a source of iron. Cell-cell interactions between two isolates of P. aeruginosa from CF patients were studied by mixing them together in nutrient broth and assessing growth rates of the mixed cultures. It was found that growth of isolates varied considerably, indicating that the isolates had different physiologies. This report suggests that interaction between different isolates may be important in the pathogenesis of chronic pulmonary infections.. Former Environment Minister Jamie Magee said that the Irish public would have to make a choice between reducing air pollution or increasing energy bills. "From an economic perspective, I would say that Ireland should have a long-term plan that allows for reductions in the costs associated with producing electricity and provides for

[Functional morphology of the adrenal cortex of intact and adrenalectomized rats in cold- and heat-stress]. A study was made of the adrenal cortex function in intact and adrenalectomized (ADX) rats in the conditions of cold- and heat-stress. ADX brought about a decrease in the corticosterone concentration and its utilization for the production of corticosterone in the adrenal cortex; this was observed in all the experiments. The level of corticosterone accumulation in the adrenal cortex of ADX rats depended on the activation of the function of corticosterone production by the adrenocorticotrophic hormone and the functions of corticosterone production. Cold-stress and heat-stress caused an increase in the corticosterone concentration in the blood serum and its utilization for the production of corticosterone in the adrenal cortex. Effect of gestational age and position on amniotic fluid index in low-risk singleton pregnancies at term. To determine the effect of gestational age and position on amniotic fluid index (AFI) in low-risk singleton pregnancies at term. This was a prospective study in 400 singleton pregnant women. The AFI of each gestational age and birth position of the fetus was recorded. The mean (SD) gestational age at delivery was 38.1 (1.6) weeks. The mean (SD) gestational age-specific mean and 95% CI

AutoCAD's new ability to automatically import markup and incorporate feedback into your drawings saves hours in the back-and-forth with clients. Markup features can be applied to vector and raster graphics, and enable you to quickly incorporate feedback from printed paper or PDFs. Using the new feature, CAD users can import and incorporate automatically the responses to the feedback they receive. If you show your client a revision to your drawing, send the revised drawing to the client or show it to your team, you don't have to annotate each revision with the feedback you got. AutoCAD's new support for imported PDFs includes the option to import entire pages or to specify a PDF region. Collaboration with SmartDraw: Two new collaboration features are now available to all AutoCAD customers: Multiple Versions and Public Versions. SmartDraw Link enables you to turn drawings, drawings, and PDFs into shared views for public revision. This feature connects your CAD drawings with SmartDraw and adds an icon to your drawing that serves as a shortcut to the SmartDraw website. With Multiple Versions, you can access up to 10 versions of your drawing in one PDF. With Multiple Versions, you can access up to 10 versions of your drawing in one PDF, without the need to install a Web browser extension. All those drawings can be opened in one Web browser. Rapid feedback – and a way to get your designs right the first time: An automated feature called Snap to Grid can capture the distances and angles of lines and corners. This feature doesn't require any additional drawing steps, but can be used in conjunction with any custom tool. It enables you to snap to existing dimensions or create a custom dimension to complete your drawings. The Snap To Grid feature can save you hours in the back-and-forth with your clients. It can be used for drawing all sorts of aspects of your drawings: including sizing lines, text, dimensions, and dimensions for graphical layouts. Change the way you design with new intuitive shapes: Arrow and Line Extensions and Split Nodes make it easy to apply more complex designs. The new Spline feature lets you draw curves. When you use an arrowhead or end tip to create a line, you can move the line to any other place on the drawing. If you're not sure how much space you
